ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A system for automatic statistics creation comprises a query optimizer which automatically generates statistics derived from data in a database and selects an

5 executable procedure from a plurality of procedures that operate on data in a database using the automatically generated statistics. A counter is maintained of updates made to each statistic that has been automatically generated. If the counter breaches a threshold, the 10 automatically generated statistic is removed from the database.